

I'm sorry, what's your NAME AGAIN? (1)

“Again” is used when you forgot what someone has told you or you couldn't hear what they said, and you politely ask again

Remember: This must be the second or third time (or more times) to get this information!!*

ex.) You can't remember where someone is/I am from:

I'm sorry, where are you from again ?

1. You can't remember someone's name:

_____ ?

2. You have forgotten where John lives:

_____ ?

3. You weren't able to clearly hear Harry's phone number:

_____ ?

4. You couldn't hear what Susan does for her job: (do)

_____ ?

5. You have forgotten how to spell a person's name: (how; your name)

_____ ?

6. You couldn't hear Bill's last name:

_____ ?

7. Someone calls you and you don't remember their company's name:

_____ ?

8. You forgot Emily's husband's name:

_____ ?

9. You can't remember Mary's email address:

_____ ?

10. You forgot how many children I have:

_____ ?

11. You can't remember what university Ed went to:

_____ ?

12. You forgot the (musical) instrument that I play:

_____ ?

13. You completely forgot what my apartment number is:

_____ ?

14. You can't remember what Jane's hometown is:

_____ ?

15. You forgot what company I work for:

_____ ?