

So -vs- So That (Answers)

So is usually used alone to explain why something happened or not

John is really tall, so he has to bend down going through doors.

So...that work together where so tell the level of something and that explains why something happened or not

John is so tall that he has to bend down going through doors.

Fill in the blanks with so or that, or *leave it blank (if neither one fits the sentence) to make a correct sentence as in the examples:

ex.1) America is so big that it takes 1 week to drive across it.

ex.2) America is quite big, so it takes 1 week to drive across it.

ex.3) America is so big, XX and to drive across it takes 1 week.

1. It was very windy and rainy, so we couldn't go hiking.
2. It was so windy and rainy that we couldn't go hiking.
3. Mara's accent is so difficult XX to understand.
4. Rob was really tired, so he went to bed early last night.
5. My fridge was so heavy that it took 3 people to move it.
6. It is so expensive XX to fly to Hawaii during summer.
7. The music was so loud that I couldn't hear anything.
8. I like that band, so I think I'll go see their concert.
9. We had so much fun XX playing video games all night.
10. Fred has no money, so he can't fix his broken down car.
11. The game system was so expensive that I didn't buy it.
12. Tim was up so late watching You Tube that he couldn't get up for school today.
13. Tim was up late last night watching You Tube, so he couldn't get up for school today.
14. Tim was up late last night XX and couldn't get up for school today.
15. This worksheet is easy, so you can finish it in 5 minutes!
16. This worksheet is so easy that you can finish it in 5 minutes!
17. This worksheet is so easy, XX and should take you only 5 minutes to finish!
18. I lost my smartphone, so I couldn't contact you last night.
19. Julie lost a lot of weight, so she looks fantastic now!
20. I studied so hard for the test that it was a piece of cake!