

Too, Too Much and Too Many (1 Answers)

Too is always followed by just an adjective.

Winters up north are too cold for me. I like warm weather.

Too much is generally followed by an uncountable noun.

Timmy spends too much time playing video games!

You can also: verb too much I ate too much and feel sick!

Too many is generally followed by a countable noun.

Bob made too many mistakes at work and was fired.

1. Jimmy couldn't ride the roller coaster because he was too short.
2. Because there were too many people in the elevator, it was too heavy and wouldn't move.
3. I'd like a new car, but they're just too expensive these days.
4. Amy spent too much money on too much jewelry and is now broke.
5. It's too dark to see anything! Turn on a light!
6. The company dumped too much pollution for too many years into the river, and now all the fish have died. That's just too sad.
7. It was too troublesome to repair my motorcycle, so I sold it.
8. The exam was way too difficult for the students to do. Too many of the questions were too confusing for them to answer.
9. It snowed too much on Saturday and all trains were stopped for hours.
10. Eddie's too nice! Too many of his friends take advantage of him!
11. Rob's always complaining too much about his wife. He says too many horrible things about her.
12. The airline overbooked, so there were too many passengers. This kind of thing is happening too many times these days. It's so annoying.
13. The soup burned Matt's tongue because it was too hot.
14. TMI is an email expression for when someone has given us too much information about something personal and we don't want to hear anymore.
15. There was too much work to finish by 6:00, so I had to stay late.
16. Too many cars on the streets cause too much traffic. The highways are always too crowded and it takes forever to get anywhere.
17. Bob, you have too much stuff on your desk! There are too many sheets of paper spread out everywhere. Clean it up.
18. I have too many things to throw away before I move to my new apartment. I think I have too much furniture for the living room and too many pairs of shoes to fit in the closet, which is definitely too small.
19. Kimberly ate too much food at the buffet and feels sick. She really ate too much chocolate at the dessert table and that's probably why she feels so bad.
20. Rich people complain that they pay too much in taxes, but too many of them don't even pay as much as they should! There are just too many loopholes that let them only pay a small percent of what they should.