

Therefore -vs- Because (1 Answers)

Therefore: a situation/what was just said for that reason there is a result

Jim was late for work again, therefore he was fired.

It's supposed to rain later, therefore I brought an umbrella.

Because: you have a result/some action because of a situation

Jim was fired because he was late for work again.

I brought an umbrella because it's supposed to rain later.

Write therefore or because in the blank spaces to complete the sentences:

1. You didn't pass all of your classes, therefore you can't graduate.
2. Not everyone is vaccinated, therefore we must continue to wear masks.
3. You can't have any dessert because you didn't finish your dinner.
4. The athlete was caught doping and was therefore kicked off the team.
5. Alice got the job because she has a lot of experience.
6. We've gotten very busy and therefore we're hiring new staff.
7. Peter has tattoos and therefore can't go to Japanese hot springs.
8. The weather forecast calls for thunder and lightning tomorrow and therefore we must cancel our picnic because of the danger.
9. New corona cases are increasing, therefore the Olympics should be canceled because there is a chance of it spreading more.
10. All trains are stopped because a typhoon is coming.
11. No one really watched that TV show and therefore it was canceled.
12. The staff was very rude to my wife, therefore I'll never eat here again!
13. We are moving to a smaller place because we can't afford the rent in this big place.
14. Ed was kicked out of school because he was caught cheating on a test.
15. Mike scored the most points and is therefore the new champion.
16. John is deeply in love with Kim, therefore he asked her to marry him.
17. I'm going to the market because I need to buy some milk.
18. Our company is losing money and therefore the CEO needs to be fired!
19. That actor was arrested and because he is so famous he didn't have to go to jail! That's not fair!
20. You haven't paid your membership fees for months and we are therefore going to cancel your gym membership.